Link up Shopify in SoldEazy

1. Create a private app in Shopify
2. Link up your Shopify app to SoldEazy
3. Clone your eBay listing to Shopify

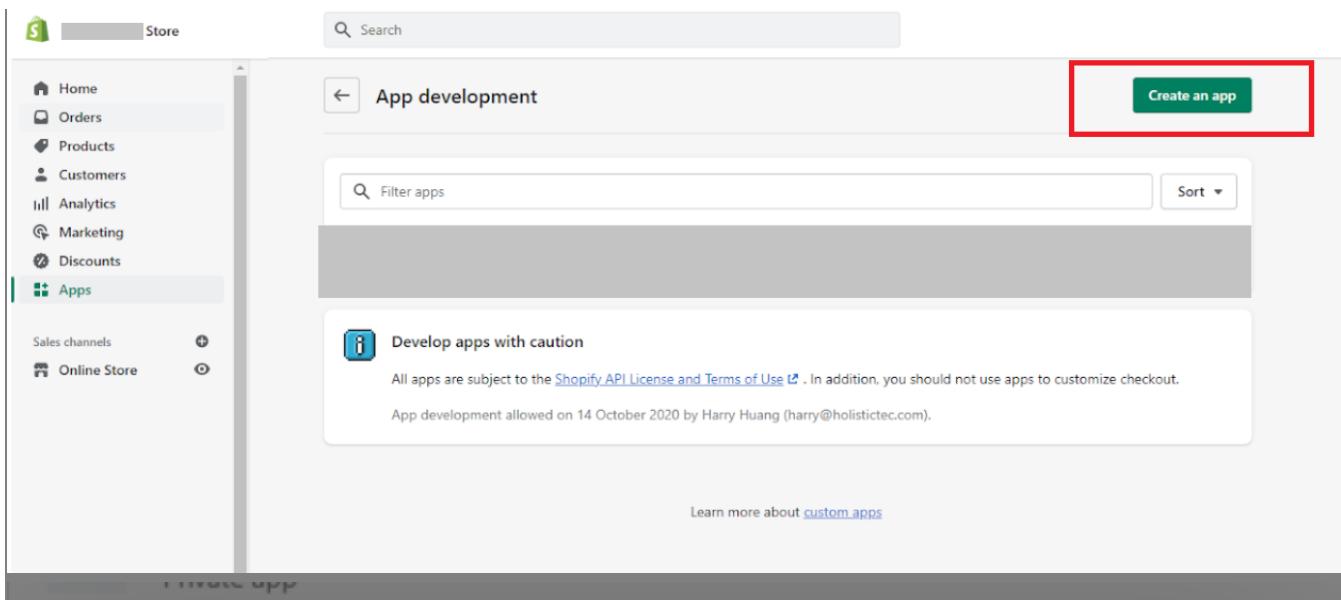

1. Create a private app in Shopify

Log in to your Shopify backend, click " Apps " in the left menu

Click " Create an app " and name your app

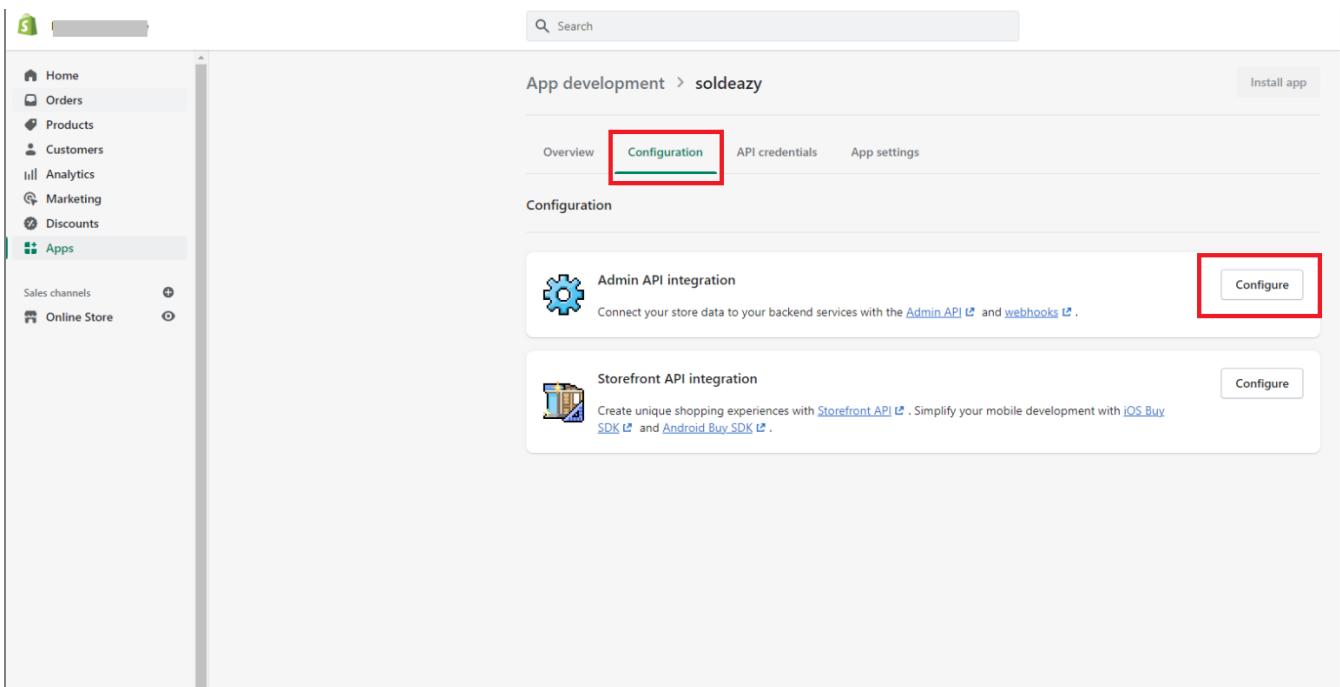

The screenshot shows the Shopify Admin interface. On the left, there's a sidebar with links like Home, Orders, Products, Customers, Analytics, Marketing, Discounts, and Apps. Below that are Sales channels and Online Store settings. The main area is titled 'App development' and features a 'Create an app' button at the top right, which is highlighted with a red box. There's also a 'Filter apps' search bar and a 'Sort' dropdown. A callout box with an info icon says 'Develop apps with caution' and provides a note about API license and terms of use. A message at the bottom indicates app development was allowed on 14 October 2020 by Harry Huang (harry@holistictec.com). A link to learn more about custom apps is also present.

The modal window is titled 'Create an app'. It has fields for 'App name' (containing 'soldeazy') and 'App developer' (a dropdown placeholder showing a blurred email address). A note below the developer field states: 'Can only be assigned to staff and collaborators with permission to develop apps. We'll contact them about development updates, like changes to Shopify APIs.' A link to the 'Shopify API License and Terms of Use' is also present. At the bottom are 'Cancel' and 'Create app' buttons, with the 'Create app' button being green.

Go to Configuration tab, click “ Configure ” in “ Admin API integration ” section.
